Extensions of time may be obtained under 37 CFR 1.136(a). The date on which the petition under 37 CFR 1.136(a) and the appropriate extension fee have been filed is the date for purposes of determining the period of extension and the corresponding amount of the fee. The appropriate extension fee under 37 CFR 1.17(a) is calculated from: (1) the expiration date of the shortened statutory period for reply originally set in the final Office action; or (2) as set forth in (b) above, if checked. Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of the final rejection, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Post final arguments presented by Applicant have been considered by the Office and are deemed unpersuasive. The Office maintains its position that the claims as currently presented are not patently distinct over the prior art(s) of record used in the rejection of the claims. The Office asserts that Frailong's invention of "a method and apparatus for initializing, configuring, and upgrading a network interface between a client computer network and an external network" meets Applicant's claimed invention. In Frailong, a network interface device is configured for the client system by automated procedures and protocols initiated from a server. In this way, the network interface device provides transparent communication between the client computer system and the remote server [Abstract]. The Office also maintains that it has given broad and reasonable interpretation to Applicants claim of a "control server comprising a data store, a user interface, a job scheduler, and a control point interface. Further, the Office stands and relies upon Frailong's explicit teaching that the control server system of his invention is in "centralized" [col 5, lines 24-40], as opposed to Applicant's remarks.
